

Corfu 2022 – Sergeant at Arms Report

Dave Barrow has asked me to do a report on the fines I levied as Sergeant at Arms on our trip to Corfu.

To add some excitement, I've set out my favourite fines as a top 10 countdown - so cast your mind back to 'Top of the Pops' on the Telly. You've just had a stiffy watching Pans People and Jimmy Savile is standing there in a slightly stained tracksuit telling you about the weeks top 10 Chart Toppers (if it's still too soon you can imagine it's David Jacobs)

De Dur de dur dum dum dum - De Dur de dur dum dum dum

Just sneaking in at Number 10 is Ian Coleman for 'Persistent good behaviour' and 'Dressing as where's Wally'.

Straight in at Number 9 this week is Neil Kellett for 'Wearing Brothel Creepers and getting confused about who was Sergeant at Arms'.

At Number 8, an artist who not been in the charts for some time, – Jim Fairbrother for 'Changing rooms to get a balcony and a better view' or 'An ostentatious display of wealth' as it's sometimes been called.

Just in front at Number 7 this week is Lee Childs with 'Speaking Spanish to a Greek waiter'. Lee's cover version of 'An ostentatious display of wealth' is also on the B side.

At Number 6 it's still David Khan for 'Not knowing that wearing shorts after dark is only appropriate for Scout Masters' which also has his unique version of 'Pimp my shoes' on the B side

De Dur de dur dum dum dum - De Dur de dur dum dum dum

Still climbing the charts and now at Number 5 it's Jeremy Toone's 'Having his bowels locked in the open position'. This one is likely to run for some time.

Straight in at Number 4 is Russell Dymond's version of that old 41 Club favourite 'Being Sick'

But beating him by just one place this week to Number 3 is Roy Davies with 'Being Sicker'

At Number 2 it's Mike Green's double A side of 'Getting us to the airport too early' and 'Knowing the plural of penis' (He says it's penes – if you're checking remember to delete your history).

But still firmly at Number 1 this week is Peter Owen's unforgettable medley of 'Not being aware that after reaching a certain age offering to play football with a young boy in a park may not be wise', 'Unnecessary singing' and 'Having a full head of hair with no sign of a bald patch'.

De Dur de dur dum dum dum - De Dur de dur dum dum dum

Dave Curran